THE IRISH CONVENTION

NORTHERN WHIG (September 4th, 1917), says :--

"We are confident most of the delegates feel rather ashamed of the fact that in the middle of a great war, when our very existence is at stake, and when every ounce of energy should be put forth in order to destroy the enemy, they should be called upon to imitate Abbe Sieyes, and spend their time in drafting constitutions which can only find a fitting resting-place in the waste-paper basket."

AN INTERNATIONAL MAGNA CHARTA

(Vide "English Review," August.)

THE NORTHERN WHIG (August 7th, 1917), writes as follows :-

"An article which will command attention, headed 'War and Reconstruction' pleads for an International Magna Charta formed by the wise men and elders of the peoples, the greatest intellects in the Humanities and Science, who would collaborate in the preparation of a scheme based upon justice and a right consideration for the welfare of the part in its relation to the whole. Such a charter, it is contended, might drive conviction into the soul of every German that he is fighting against justice, against civilisation and against God. Judging by the history of the past three years, it may, however, be doubted whether German democracy, despite the recent rumbles, is yet in the frame of mind which would make it responsive to such lofty ideals."

THE RIGHT REV. THE BISHOP OF POCHESTER, says :-

".... But if such an International League of Justice could be set on foot it would be manifestly of extreme value for the future peace of the world."

ISRAEL ZANGWILL, the Worldfamous Jewish Author, says :-

"As one who always maintained that Reson and Love be brought to pon the world situation, and that these are the only things that have never been applied by politicians, I welcome the splendid article demanding an 'International Magna Charta.

THE RIGHT HON, AMEER ALL a great leader of the Indian

Mahommedans, says :-"I have read it (An International Magna Charta) with much interest and profit, and have no doubt your suggestion will make the readers of the 'English Review' give serious consideration to the momentous problem that faces the Empire."

So far as you are the premiership. So far as we can pierce the veil with which the war has invested French politics, Germany has nothing to gain, but rather has much to lose, from the present crisis in the Cabinet. During recent months the "pacificist" agitation has increased in France, as in England; has been almost entirely non-existent. Motor touring also has been the British Government on the subject, and cheen rail. way fares to popular recent are a thing of Germanes that German influence, if not discovered by the control of Germanes that German influence, if not discovered by the control of the con cruited from the extreme Left, as well as from the Right. If he succeeds, he will have given to the world a new proof of his country's unity and purpose after three years of war.

The unknown element in the situation is the attitude of the French Socialists. They are credited with an intention to claim a larger share in the Government. They will hold a special group meeting to-day, and have summoned a national congress at Bordeaux in the first week of mittentional Socialism' has a larger vice than its importance warrants in the political organisation of Labour, and is capable of making mischief. There, too, as in England, the main body of Labour, while its heart is thoroughly sound, has been standing on its diagnity against the Government's reading on its diagnity against the Government's reading and the Forence Socialism's been standing on its diagnity against the Government's reading mischief. They would sign such projects if it suited them, but what would their signature be worth? They, themselves, have taught us. It proved no bulwark for Belgrum. How can anybody suppose that we should accept it as a bulwark for the world's peace? We cannot take the word of men who openly avew that no word is sacred to them. We have no evidence as yet that the peoples whom they doulde have found them cut. What means, Sir Edward asks, have been suggested to prevent them from reverting to their old policy the moment after they had joined a league of nations to enforce peace? They would begin at once to prepare for the "next war," and their preparation would impose upon the rest of the world the intolerable burden of arming against them, and the daily terror of a faithless and rothless despotism, whose boast it is to stand totigours ex evidence. A "German peace"—a "drawn war"—would simply strengthen the moral authority of the despotism, and impair whatever leanings towards real democracy may survive in the German report, issued on Wednesday in this afternoon.

FIGHT IN. A STORM.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, in a message from the front yesterday, says—Following upon a heavy thunderstorm, the Canadians carried out a daring little enterprise in the City of Lens. On Monday morning last, during the dark hours, they had established a series of posts in the ruins of houses on the south-west side of a street. Apparently the Huns were not quite sure as to whether they were there or not, because they lay quiet and made no response to the hombs which the enemy lobbed across. They had anticipated some such form of activity, and taken good cover against these. Last night the German troops were relieved, and the newcomers evidently counted thenselves safe against attack in such weather. But whilst the thunder was still growling, the sleeping and lounging Huns were suddenly assailed by a terrible shower of Mills' grenades. A regular stampede ensued, but the bombs continued to rain upon the fleeing enemy with such intensity that very few of them got away. The gallant exploit carried the Canadians across the street, which had heretofore separated them from the Germans, and cost the latter heavily in casualties.
